In its last issue The Friend of China, the organ of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, devotes a note to the annual report of the Colonial Surgeon of Hongkong, who is described as "an old autagonist." Dr Ayres wrote :--

With few exceptions, our readers and the English public bave had no opportunity of observing the offects of opium-smoking, and have to form their judgment upon the testimony of those medical men, missionaries, and others, who have had the opportunity. The other matter, however, is under their own observation. They know that instead of "wasting large sums of money in trying to reclaim the Chinaman," all the money spent in the anti-opium movewho is guilty of inaccuracy, and who evidently writes under the influence of strong prejudice, is a witness whom they can safely trust. When opium-smokers are put into gaol, they are not allowed any opium. Dr. Ayres says, according to the newspaper, that the auffering attendant on the deprivation of opium was not more than in the case of a tobacco-smoker deprived of his pipe. Is this credible? The testimony

The correspondence has taken a long time t search out and the first time it was put before reason, and as the matter is not by any means one of grave importance I wish for further time for consideration, and I propose to postpone the consideration in Committee for another meeting. HE OFFICIAL INTURPRETATION QUESTION.

The following message from his Excellency the Governor to the Legislative Council in connection with inerpretation was read at the Counil moeting yesterday:-

Commission which was appointed to enquire respecting the interpretation in the Courts and other Government Departments; and as the result of further enquiries at I much discussion of the subject, he is now prepared with definite recommendations, which, it adopted, will be hopes, promote a more general knowledge of Chinese in the Public Service and bring about assubstantial improvement in its interpreting

It should, however, be met tioned in the first instance that the existing at te of things proved on investigation to be scar ely as defective as might be supposed from the eport of the Commission. The Judges and Magistrates (from whom no information was sought or obtained) did not altogether confirm the view taken by the Commissioners in paragraph 7 of their re port, and have furnished evidence showing that in respect of Hakka, the most important of the dialects specifically mentioned, the Colony as it had not yet done so the Bill must be left fairly well served. And even as regards the dialects of Swatow and Amo, the Governor, as the result of his enquiries, is not disposed to think that there is so wide a gap between present deficiency and what is practically obtainable as a superficial consideration of the subject is

> It is to be borne in mind that ideal perfection in interpretation is quite insuracticable of attainment even when the two languages are far more akin than English and any dialect of Chinese. In the quick translation of any one language into any other the success of cross examination is, and must be, frequently affected by the failure to distinguish delicate shades o meaning; and in view of the last that there are used by witnesses here a great number of dialects of a lauruage so utterly notike English as is that of China, it is quite how less to expect the attainment of a condition under which the Courts would be altogether free of difficulty and > embarrassment in respect of interpretation. Of the Hakka dialect alone, which is mention. ed in the report as one single dialect, there are the Governor is informed, several varieties, each sufficiently distinct from the rest to render a good interpreter of any one very possibly a bad interpreter of any other; and it is obvious that under such circumstances to secure, for the Courts the command of satisfactory interpretation in all cases is a work of no ordinary difficulty, which at the best can only be accomplished approximately.

> It would be evidently inerpedient to attempt the provision of all the necessary capacity and analifications in a class of officers employed on no other duty. For that world not only involve the very great expense of a large Department of Interpreters and of studen's (many of whom would probably prove ineligible for office after large sums had been spent on their training) but it would mean a body of officers, for the most part required for service only very occasionally and whose idleness, as regards public works, in the intervals would be pechaps injurious to themselves, and certainly too the Government

For this reason it seems desirable to depend on regular interpreters only in respect of the two or three dialects in most common usu: as recards the less common dialects or varieties of dialects to provide the requisite capacity among other Public Officers whose services as interpreters would be called for only when

Partly with this object therefore, and also to promote improvement in all interpretation, as well as to obtain greater efficiency, through improved knowledge of Chinese, in other depart. certain regulations (1) which are now laid on the table and offered for consideration, as appearing likely to secure what is required within ressonable limits of expense, and under other conditions least open to objection.
